THE BOOK OF HOME BEAUTY—Splendidly embellished. 4to., cloth, gift.

"A magnificent book. The portraits all come up to the standard of Beauty, and may well feel honored in having their fair features mirrored in so beautiful a casett."

"The Book of Home Beauty is well named. While its illusivant as a.e domestic portraits, its text is a portrait of domestic beauty, illustrating the principles and methods by which beauty and goodness may be cashrined in the homes of elegance and fashion. The reader will find it difficult, after a careful perusal, to say whether the book derived its title from the text or from the illustrations. We commend it to universal patronage."

"Mr. Putnam certainly deserves high commendation for the truly superb style in which he has brought out this work. It is in all respects fit to grace a Queen's boudoir, and will compare most favorably with the finest spe sumens of London book work. The price of this magnificent volume is $6.50, and it may be found at Messrs. Phillips, Sampson & Co.'s Bookstore."

Price 30 cents.

Sue has given us in the above powerful romance, another vivid and s'artling picture of the sufforings and struggles which aristocracies entail upon the people. The work abounds in incident, and is repiete with interest from the opening chapter to the close. The characters are drawn and sustained throughout with spirit and fidelity. The action is rapid, and the story absorbingly intense. Rarely have we perused a volume which had for us so deep an interest. It fascinates the senses, like a beautiful woman, and gives the reader no rest till he has completed the story.
